Grey House Publishing announces the Fourteenth Edition of *The Directory of Business Information Resources

Grey House Publishing is proud to announce the publication of the Fourteenth Edition of The Directory of Business Information Resources. Since its first publication in 1992, this directory has consistently been the reference book of choice for business researchers in a wide range of industries.

The Directory of Business Information Resources pulls together a wide variety of resources for nearly 100 different industries. This comprehensive coverage and the clear organization of this new edition makes it easy for the user to locate the information needed to stay connected with his or her field and pinpoint important events and publications.

We've expanded this 2007 edition to include over 900 new listings (bringing the total number of listings over 22,000) along with thousands of updates to existing entries. We've also included an article summarizing projections for development of the labor force over the period of 2004-2014, issued by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

This new 2007 edition of The Directory of Business Information Resources begins with the article discussed above, Tomorrow's Jobs. Following the article are the 98 industry chapters, covering industries such as: Accounting, Automotive, BioTechnology, Building & Construction, Computers & Data Processing, Drugs & Pharmaceuticals, Engineering, Financial Services, Healthcare, Insurance, Law Enforcement & Public Safety, Mining, Paper & Allied Products, Public Relations, Real Estate, Safety & Security, Telecommunications, Water Supply, and more.

Each chapter is divided into multiple subtopics, all listed in the Content Summary of Chapter Listings which follows Tomorrow's Jobs. This list enables the user to pinpoint the correct chapter, rather than searching through several to find the category of information for which he or she is looking. For example, one can easily see that Agricultural Law is in the Agriculture chapter, rather than the Legal Services chapter, or that Bomb Technicians is found in the Safety & Security chapter, rather than in the Law Enforcement & Public Safety chapter.

Following the Content Summary is a new feature, the Standard Industrial Code (SIC) Cross Reference Table. This table connects the Department of Labor's standardized list of business codes with the chapters in the Directory, thus providing yet another way for users to locate the listings in which they are interested.

The Directory of Business Information Resources also contains two indices, found at the back of the book. The first is an Entry Index, which is an alphabetical list of all entries. The second is a Publisher Index, which is an alphabetical list of all publishers of the industry literature featured in the Directory.

For the fastest access to information, The Directory of Business Information Resources is also available as an Online Database. Subscribers to the Online Database will have immediate access to the detailed listings contained in the print directory. With The Directory of Business Information Resources Online Database, users will be able to conduct in-depth searches of the database to locate resources that meet specific search criteria, and all listings are accompanied by links to the listee's web sites and email addresses. Finding specific information and resources for your industry has never been easier. Visit www.greyhouse.com for a free search through the Online Database or call (800) 562-2139 x.118 for more information.

In this age of information overload, it's extremely useful and time-saving to have a single reference for industry resources. Rather than spending hours wading through web pages or consulting multiple sources, The Directory of Business Information Resources puts users in touch with the support they need to stay on the cutting edge of their industries. Whether searching for a must-attend trade show, a vital industry publication, or a valuable database, The Directory of Business Information Resources puts the user in contact with the right people.
