Grey House Publishing announces the First Edition of *Global Terror & Political Risk Assessment: Yearbook and Forecast 2010

Grey House Publishing is proud to announce the publication of the First edition of Global Terror & Political Risk Assessment: Yearbook and Forecast 2010.

This important new reference tool combines an overview of the major incidents of terror and political unrest around the world in 2009, an expert, in-depth global risk forecast for 2010, along with county-by-country overviews and major risk events to put each country's unrest in a historical context. With many maps and graphs, no other resource offers this level of detailed analysis of terror and political risk, in an easy-to-use single volume, in such a user-friendly, accessible format.

This edition was developed with data, analysis and forecasts from Exclusive Analysis (EA), whose experience in assessing global political risks worldwide makes this brand new work significantly relevant. This resource is arranged into 4 sections, and each begins with an introduction and table of contents.

Detailed Introduction: gives the reader an important overview of political risk assessment. Special coverage is given to the Language of Risk, to give the reader further background data.

Section I: Chronological Review 2009 – Details 50 risk-relevant developments around the world in 2009.

This section also includes Major Incident Responses, which assess pivotal events or incidents, in order to assess their consequences.
