A “Place Name Index” at the end of this section makes it easy for researchers to jump to a particular place. The Comparative Statistics section allows users to find data about the 100 largest incorporated places, townships, and CDPs (Census Designated Places) using different data points (population, commute to work, marriage status, etc.). Community Rankings provides information on 150 places with populations over 2,500, ranking them in ascending and descending order based on employment, ancestry, marital status, crime, and more. The Education section offers an overall profile of New Jersey schools, New Jersey’s National Assessment of Education Progress, and school district rankings. The final sections provide profiles of ancestry, ethnicity, and climate. This curated, reliable, easy-to-use reference is recommended.”
