

Chicago, top, is the largest city in Illinois and the third largest in the United States. It sits along the shores of Lake Michigan, which is the only one of the five Great Lakes of North America that is located entirely in the United States. The city is home to the Museum of Science and Industry, bottom, located between Lake Michigan and the University of Chicago. Housed in the former Palace of Fine Arts from the 1893 World's Columbian Exposition, its exhibits include a full-size replica coal mine, a German submarine captured during WWII, and Apollo 8's command module.

ILLINOIS

SATELLITE VIEW

In 1972, Landsat began transmitting views of our planet back to Earth. The first Landsat and its five successors (two of them are in operation now) have delivered millions of images from a satellite orbiting 438 miles above the Earth. Landsat's orbit enables a new image to be recorded every sixteen days of any area on the Earth's surface. The satellite view on this map was created from a mosaic of many Landsat images joined together. Colors were selected to better show variations in the landscape. Relief shading was added to enhance the terrain and make the landforms of each state more apparent.
