

Section I Contents

This section contains the information about company type, size and capital level for all rated and unrated health insurers analyzed by Weiss Ratings.

- 1. Insurance Company Name The legally-registered name, which can sometimes differ from the name that the company uses for advertising. If you cannot find the company you are interested in, or if you have any doubts regarding the precise name, verify the information with the company before looking the name up in this Guide. Also, determine the domicile state for confirmation. (See column 2.)
- 2. Domicile State The state which has primary regulatory responsibility for the company. It may differ from the location of the company's corporate headquarters. You do not have to be living in the domicile state to purchase insurance from this firm, provided it is licensed to do business in your state.

Also use this column to confirm that you have located the correct company. It is possible for two unrelated companies to have the same name if they are domiciled in different states.
- 3. Safety Rating Our rating is measured on a scale from A to F and considers a wide range of factors. Please see What Our Ratings Mean for specific descriptions of each letter grade and the following pages for information on how our ratings differ from those of other rating agencies. Most important, when using this rating, please be sure to consider the Important Warnings and Cautions regarding the ratings' limitations and the underlying assumptions.
- 4. Data Date The latest quarter-end for which we have received the company's financial statement.
- 5. Total Assets All assets admitted by state insurance regulators in millions of dollars as of the most recent quarter end. This includes investments and current business assets such as receivables from agents, reinsurers and subscribers.

The overall size is an important factor which affects the ability of a company to manage risk. Mortality, morbidity (sickness) and investment risks can be more effectively diversified by large companies. Because the insurance business is based on probability, the number of policies must be large enough so that actuarial statistics are valid. The larger the number of policyholders, the more reliable the actuarial projections will be. A large company with a correspondingly large policy base can spread its risk and minimize the effects of claims experience that exceeds actuarial expectations.
- 6. Total Premiums The amount of insurance premiums received from policyholders as of the most recent year end. If the company issues life insurance or property insurance, those premiums are included in this figure as well.

Generally speaking, companies with large premium volume generally have more predictable claims experience.
- 7. Health The amount of insurance premiums received from policyholders for health policies only as of the most recent year end.

Premiums

Compare this figure with Total Premiums in the previous column to see how much of the company's business relates to health coverage.

8. Capital and Surplus

The company's statutory net worth in millions of dollars as of the most recent quarter end. Consumers may wish to limit the size of any policy so that the policyholder's maximum benefits do not exceed approximately 1% of the company's capital and surplus. For example, when buying a policy from a company with capital and surplus of $10,000,000, the 1% limit would be $100,000. (When performing this calculation, do not forget that figures in this column are expressed in millions of dollars.)

Critical Ranges In Our Ratios
Indicators	Strong	Good	Fair	Weak
Risk-Adjusted Capital Ratio #1	—	1.0 or more	0.75 - 0.99	0.74 or less
Risk-Adjusted Capital Ratio #2	1.0 or more	0.75 - 0.99	0.5 - 0.74	0.49 or less

9. Risk-Adjusted Capital Ratio #1

This ratio examines the adequacy of the company's capital base and whether the company has sufficient capital resources to cover potential losses which might occur in an average recession or other moderate loss scenario. Specifically, the figure cited in this column answers the question: For every dollar of capital that we feel would be needed, how many dollars in capital resources does the company actually have? (See the table above for the levels which we believe are critical.) You may find that some companies have unusually high levels of capital. This often reflects special circumstances related to the small size or unusual operations of the company.

10. Risk-Adjusted Capital Ratio #2

This is similar to item 9. But in this case, the question relates to whether the company has enough capital cushion to withstand a severe recession or other severe loss scenario. For more details on risk-adjusted capital, see the Appendix.
